CENTRAL FREE DISPENSARY

OF

WEST CHICAGO.

For the Year Ending November 30, 1890.

LOCATED IN THE BUILDING OF RUSH MEDICAL COLLEGE, CORNER
WOOD AND HARRISON STREETS.

CHICAGO, 1890.

The Central Free Dispensary.

The benefits of this charity are not intended for any who are able to pay for the same.

This is one of the oldest Dispensaries in the city. It furnishes at the Dispensary surgical and medical aid to the sick poor, no matter where they may live, and has an outdoor service for such as live in the West Division.

It is designed to relieve and restore to health and labor the poor who are afflicted with sickness.

It restores to many their only means of support, and thus prevents poverty, pauperism and crime.

It is economical to the tax payers, for it keeps many of the sick poor and their families from becoming a charge on the county, in the hospitals and almshouse.

It is dependent upon voluntary contributions for its support

To enable it to do this useful and humane work it asks from you a contribution annually for its necessary expenses.

It needs this from you and the friends of the sick poor now.

Donations are thankfully received by Dr. Philip Adolphus, Superintendent, No.
737 West Madison Street.

TO THE PUBLIC.

The Directors of the Central Free Dispensary desire to call your attention to the needs of the sick poor of the West Division of Chicago.

The demands upon this dispensary have increased with our growing population, and although our citizens have been liberal in their contributions, we find it difficult to meet the necessities of our unfortunate poor.

The number of patients to be treated has steadily increased, until we have in the past year attended to the wants of 16,365 persons, providing free of charge medicines, bandages, splints and other necessary articles to the sick and wounded.

For your thoughtful consideration we would respectfully state, that at the Central Free Dispensary Chronic Diseases are mainly treated. The working class is generally able to pay physicians' bills in acute cases of disease, but this is not the case in diseases and disabilities where extensive surgical operations are required, or where the treatment is to be one of long standing; or the case, otherwise incurable, requires long continued supervision.

It is in this special field in which our work is eminently useful.

The Directors have placed the best medical and surgical skill that could be procured in the Northwest at the disposal of such patients as required its aid.

The consulting staff of our Dispensary are members of the Faculty of Rush Medical College, and are the consultants in many obscure and difficult cases of disease and operations where skillful diagnosis and technique are required.

The physicians have faithfully attended to their duties during the past year, and have materially advanced the interests of the Dispensary.

We thank the public for the sympathy and support it has shown our Institution in years gone by, and are confident that it will not withhold its helping hand in future.

A DESCRIPTION OF THE METHODS OF CONDUCT- ING THE DISPENSARY WORK.

Any person in need of medical advice calls at the Dispensary, and enters the reception room. He states his troubles to the House Physician, and is directed to sit and await his turn, on the benches of the proper attending physician. As he takes his seat he sees that out of three sides of this reception room there open nine smaller rooms, each of which is the office of an attending Physician for a different class of disease.

Near the doors of these various rooms are grouped many persons, who, like himself, are waiting an opportunity to have an interview with the particular physician for their own ailment.

His turn comes, and he enters the room of the physician. The interview which follows does not differ from those which all persons have with their physicians. This physician is one who at other times of the day may be busy at his office, or visiting a more wealthy class of patients, and for whose advice you would have to pay a considerable fee. Examination and prescription follow each other as in such cases, and the patient receives his prescriptions and directions.

As the patient leaves the room, he goes to the Druggist's office on the other side of the reception room to have the prescription filled. The patient receives his medicine, prepared and marked with full directions for use. He repeats his visits as often as necessary.

Cases of complicated character, and those which require serious surgical operations are referred to our consulting Physicians and Surgeons, who institute such treatment as is indicated.

Some forty-two Physicians with their assistants give their time gratuitously to treat and prescribe for all who apply during the appointed hours.

A patient visiting the Dispensary knows that when any member of his family is too sick to come to the Dispensary, there are a number of excellent Physicians who answer, free of charge, any calls which may be registered at the Dispensary.

By these direct and simple methods a vast number of sick poor have been relieved.

DESIGN OF THE INSTITUTION.

The object of this Institution is to furnish the sick poor with medical attendance and medicine gratuitously, and to accomplish this work in the most faithful manner and at the least possible expense. All feasible means are taken to exclude unworthy applicants for the benefits of this charity..

HISTORY.

The Central Free Dispensary was organized in 1867, under the title of the Brainard Free Dispensary, and incorporated on April 1st, 1873. At different periods, for nine years it occupied small rooms at 232 W. Randolph St., 79 W. Madison St., 95 W. Randolph St., 136 N. Sangamon St., and 239 W. Van Buren St. It was supported at first entirely by private donations. These were supplemented from 1870 to 1884 by an annual appropriation from the Board of County Commissioners of Cook County, ranging from $500 to $1,000.

During the two years following the disastrous fire of October, 1871, the work of the Dispensary was greatly increased by the increased number of destitute sick. Much of this work was performed under the auspices of the Chicago Relief and Aid Society, which in 1873 donated to the Dispensary as a fund the sum of $4,000.00.

In 1871 the Herrick Free Dispensary was founded, under the auspices of the Relief and Aid Society, to assist in relieving the destitution caused by the recent disaster. This Dispensary confined its task to the care of the sick poor in the southern portion of the West Side. Its rooms were on Wright St., near the corner of Twelfth St.

In 1873 this new Dispensary, to which the Relief and Aid Society had donated as a permanent fund, the sum of $5,000.00, was united with the Central Dispensary under one organization. By this union the Central Dispensary was in possession of a fund of $9,000.00, which was increased by other contributions to $11,000.00.

In 1876 the Dispensary removed to its present and more spacious accommodations, in the lower story of the new Rush Medical College, corner of Harrison and Wood streets. These rooms are secured for a long term of years at a rental which can never exceed $660 a year. By special arrangements with the College this rent has been for the past twelve years only $330 a year, only half the amount originally contemplated, the other half, $330, being added each year to the permanent fund. These accumulations, together with interest account, have added $6,500 to the permanent fund, making a total of $17,500. This principal, or fund, has been securely invested in bonds and securities, and the income derived from it is dispensed in the charitable work for which this organization was created. In addition to this, the Dispensary is the recipient of the income derived from a legacy known as the "John Phillip's Fund," and left by him to the trustees of Rush Medical College, to be held in trust for dispensary purposes. This fund amounts to $7,743.81, and yields an annual income of $464.63.

In return for the money thus given to the Dispensary, and for the accommodations provided at such low rent, is accorded to the students of the College the privilege of studying the diseases of the patients, and of observing their treatment by the medical board of the Dispensary.

The direct benefits which have been bestowed upon destitute sufferers can be but partially measured by the statistics herewith presented.

The indirect benefits can not be measured by any statistics, nor by any standard; such benefits, we mean, which young men receive while pursuing the study of medicine, and which the communities in which they are to labor secure in the services of educated physicians. The Dispensary is also assisted by the annual contributions of a number of generous citizens, who remember the poor in their sickness and misfortune.

With the great growth of the city has also grown the number of destitute and worthy applicants for this relief, and the income at the command of the trustees is insufficient to meet the wants of the suffering multitude. It is hoped that the contributions will be largely increased to meet these needs.

Dr. Philip Adolphus, Superintendent, No. 737 W. Madison St., will gratefully acknowledge contributions to this charity.

INVITATION TO VISITORS.

All who desire to obtain a personal knowledge of the necessity of such an institution, its practical benefit to the sick poor, and its claims on the liberality of our citizens, are invited to visit the Dispensary and judge for themselves.
